INTRODUCTION

The Lakhers or Maras are a Hills Tribe of Malayan stock. They probably number about 20,000. The country they occupy is about the size of Wales. Although they live in one large area, yet their country is divided. One part is in Assam in the South Lushai Hills, another part in the Chin Hills of Burma, and a third part in the Arakan Hill Tracts. They live on the borders of Assam, Burma and Arakan, geographically, in the North Arakan Yoma Mountains.
